TRANSFORMING LIVES AND CHANGING PERSPECTIVES:

At the University of West Georgia, that’s our primary mission. As a comprehensive public university, we’re focused firmly on student success, but we also recognize our role as an active, innovative partner in our region, both in terms of economic development and of community engagement. We’re proud of our record (and growing) enrollment, $300 million in new and renovated facilities, and SACS level VI accreditation, but also of our annual regional impact of $442 million.

We are committed to prioritizing and developing relevant academic programs to address current and evolving educational and workforce needs, and to providing experiential learning opportunities for our students with the primary goal of preparing them for successful careers and contributing to a more educated and competitive Georgia. We’re constantly looking for new ways to cultivate research and business partnerships, offer a broad array of continuing education and cultural opportunities to improve quality of life, and seek innovative exchanges with other educational institutions to enhance opportunities for all learners.
