ASA STYLE GUIDE FOR UWG SOCIOLOGY CLASSES

This style guide is a modified version of the American Sociological Association Style Guide (3rd ed.). It was designed to be used in undergraduate classes; however, it does not supersede specific instructions given by individual instructors.

THE BASICS

Scholarly writing should be formal, clear and grammatically correct. Unsubstantiated assertions should be avoided. When a claim is made, it should be backed up by data and a sound argument. Claims should also be qualified and not exaggerated. The first person and the passive voice should rarely be used. Do not use the second person except to refer to the reader. Plagiarism must be avoided.

Language that infers a gender or race bias should be avoided. Unless gender is significant to the paper, gender-neutral terms should be used, such as “child” for “girl” or “boy,” “person” for “man” or “woman,” and “humanity” for “mankind.” Using plural nouns and pronouns is another way to avoid gender bias. Slashed (“he/she”) or repeated use of a conjunction (“he or she”) should be avoided. If identifying gender or sexuality adds to greater precision, then appropriate gender terms should be used. Race and ethnic stereotyping must be avoided. The terminology of classification has changed over time, and writers should be as specific as possible when using this terminology; therefore, do not write “Asian” if “Japanese” is more accurate.

Some Terms to Use
African American (no hyphen)
black (lower case)
white (lower case)
Hispanic, Chicano, Latino (or Latina for females; use Latino for males or if gender is not specified)
American Indian, Native American
Asian or Asian American (no hyphen)

Some Terms to Avoid
Afro-American
Negro
Oriental

Verbs present problems for many writers. Selecting the proper verb tense is important. The best approach is to be consistent within the entire paper or, for long papers, within sections of the paper. The past tense works best for literature reviews and for descriptions of research methods. Presentations of results can be in the present or past tense. Subject-verb agreement is also important, and many sociology students have problems with the word “data.” “Data” is plural (the singular is “datum”) and it requires a plural verb, e.g. “The data are presented in Table 1.” Context determines whether some nouns are singular or plural. “Some,” “none,” “number,” “most,” “any,” and “part” are singular or plural depending on the noun that follows them.

For example: Some of the report is missing. (singular)
Some of the books are missing. (plural)

Unnecessary words or phrases should also be omitted. “Weber wrote . . .” is better than “It has been written by Weber that . . .”
FORMAT

All text – including the title page, abstract, references and tables or figures – should be double-spaced and printed in Times New Roman 12. Margins should be set at 1.25-inch on all four sides. The paper should be stapled. The pages should be numbered.

The title page (or cover sheet) should include the title of the paper, your name, the course title, the words “University of West Georgia” and the date. This information should be arranged vertically.

An abstract follows the title page. It should be one paragraph and approximately 150 words in length. Some instructors may not want an abstract. The title should appear on the top of this page.

The body should begin on a new page, and the title should appear at the top of this page.

References should begin on a separate page following the body of your paper. The word “References” should be centered at the top of this page.

Each figure (chart, illustration, photograph) and table should be given a descriptive title. Tables should be numbered consecutively, as should figures. The title should be placed at the top. For the tables, headings should be written out, not abbreviated, for all columns and rows. If the figure or table is derived from a secondary source, the source should be listed at the bottom. According to the instructor’s directions, figures and tables will be included in the body of the paper or located after the references. In all cases, an indication of the figure or table should be mentioned in the text, e.g., (See Table 1). See pages 9 and 10 for examples of figures and tables.

CITATIONS IN THE TEXT

Authors’ last names and publication dates are included in all citations. Do not put punctuation between the names and the dates. Page numbers are also used if the reference is to specific passages or if it involves a direct quote. If a citation follows a direct quote at the end of a sentence, the period follows the citation, not the quotation. URL’s are not used in citations.

1. If the author’s name is in the text, simply put the date of publication in parentheses, e.g., . . . according to Holland (2005).

2. If the author’s name is not in the text, put the name and date of publication in parentheses, e.g., . . . (Sawtell 2007).

3. If the cited text has two authors, list both authors, e.g., . . . (Arrigo and Williams 2004).

4. If the cited text has three authors, list all authors in the first citation and use the first author and “et al.” in subsequent citations, e.g., (Jenks, Carter and Jenks 2007) becomes (Jenks et al. 2007) in later citations.
5. If the text being cited has more than three authors, use “et al.” in all citations, e.g., in a study of short term treatment (Stone et al. 2004).

6. Page numbers go after the publication date. A colon separates the date and the pages. Omit the space between the colon and the pages, e.g., “… issues that arise in most courts” (Fuller 2006:284).

7. Use block quotation style for quotes of 50 words or more. This style is indented, and quotation marks are not used. If a page number follows the block quote a capital “P.” is used, e.g., (P.57).

8. A series of references should be alphabetized or put in chronological order (consistently throughout the paper) and separated by semicolons, e.g., … (Johnson 2007; Luken and Vaughan 2003a; Noori 2006).

9. For works with organizational authorship or without an author, provide minimum identification, e.g., … (U.S. Bureau of the Census 2004).

10. For citation of a reprint of an earlier version, include the earlier publication date in brackets prior to the recent version, e.g., … ([1899] 2003).

11. If an organizational author or title is lengthy, use an abbreviated form in the citation, e.g. if the author is the American Sociological Association use ASA in the text citation.

REFERENCES

- References are arranged in alphabetical order by authors’ last names.
- Double-space all references.
- Use hanging indentations of .5 inch.
- Use authors’ first names and middle names or initials if they are provided. If the author uses initials instead of the surname, use initials also.
- If the date of publication is unknown, use “N.d.”
- If the publication has yet to appear, use “Forthcoming.”
- If an author has two or more publications, list them in the order in which they appeared, i.e., the earliest year first. Place the author’s name in the first listing and use three em dashes and a period (———.) instead of the name in subsequent listings. If the publications are in the same year, the articles are listed alphabetically by title of article, and the letters “a,” “b,” “c,” and so on are attached to the date. Do not consider the words “a,” “an,” or “the” when alphabetizing.
- Use an en dash to indicate a range of pages.

BOOKS

Omit the state of publication if the city is New York.
Put a colon between the title and subtitle.
Book – single author
Last name, First name, Initials. Date of publication. Title of the Book in Italics. City of publication, postal initials for state of publication: Publisher. (For foreign publications use city and country instead of city and state.)

Book—two or more authors
Last name, First name, Initial “and” First name Initials Last name. Date of publication. Title of the Book in Italics. City of publication, postal initials for state of publication: Publisher.

Note: If there are more then two authors, do not put a comma between the names of the next-to-last and the last author.

Anonymous source
1. Do not use the word “Anonymous” to designate the author.
2. If the author’s name can be discerned from the work itself, put it in brackets.
3. If the author’s name cannot be determined, begin with the title. Put a leading article at the end of the title.

Title of the Book, Article. Publication date. City, ST: Publisher.

Editions of Books
Indicate the edition after the title.

Volumes of Books
As is the case for editions of books above, indicate the volume number after the title, e.g., “Vol. 5.” If you are citing all volumes of a book, indicate the number of volumes after the title, e.g., “3 vols.”

Translations
As is the case for editions of books above, indicate the translator after the title, e.g., “Translated by Geraldine Mcintosh.”
Republished Books
These are books that have gone out of print and were reissued later. Do not use this style for more recent editions or publication in paperback.
Note the original publication date in brackets and then the current publication date, e.g., “[1899] 2003.”

ARTICLES AND BOOK CHAPTERS
Chapters and Articles from Collected Works
Last name, First name, Initial. Date. “Chapter Title in Quotes.” Pp. pages in Book Title in Italics, edited by Editor’s initials Last name. Place of publication: Publisher.

Articles from Journals
Previously ASA style did not require issue numbers in most cases. Now they are recommended and should be in parentheses after the volume number. Do not put a punctuation mark after the journal title.
