

Igniting a Spark

Presenter Taylor Robertson, Early Childhood Education major

Mentored by Dr. Thomas Peterson

When working with at risk youth, many believe that there is no hope for those "trouble makers." Through the use of Cosmos, a way of telling our life's story, we are able to connect with those children to show them we are not very different. By doing this we are able to show the youth that they can accomplish whatever they want to in their life, that they do not have to go down the same path their parents went down, or continue on the path that has been laid before them. Through the Cosmos, we are all able to come together and ignite a spark to a wide range of possibilities for their futures.