B. College: College of Education

Program Changes:

(1) Department: Clinical and Professional Studies

a. Program: Master of Arts in Teaching (MAT)

Request: Modify

Originator: Bucholz, Jessica

Rationale: Adding a special education track to the existing MAT program. The Georgia Board of Regents (BOR) has defined Master of Education (M.Ed.) degree programs as advanced programs. Thus all M.Ed. programs offering initial certification must be reconfigured into a Master of Arts in Teaching (MAT) degree program which the BOR defines as a program that leads to initial teacher certification. Since we will continue to offer our M.Ed. in Special Education for candidates already holding certification, we are asking to modify the existing M.A.T. program to include a track for Special Education for candidates seeking initial certification in Special Education. We have tried to reflect important aspects of the current MAT programs, as well as components to best meet the needs of candidates, children, and all stakeholders involved in public P-12 education. Special education is still a high-need field and currently school systems have no choice but to hire some personnel who only hold temporary (provisional) certificates in this field. This program can meet the needs of those teaching on provisional certificates, as well as offering a vehicle for those who wish to enter this area of education.

Attachment: Program Sheet, see Catalog Submission System, (<https://apps.westga.edu/catalog/>)

Action: Approved

(2) Department: Leadership and Instruction

a. Program: Master of Education with a Major in Secondary Education

Request: Modify

Originator: Frank Butts

Rationale: This request is to modify the existing Master of Education with a Major in Secondary Education by removing two concentration options: Economics Concentration and Political Science Concentration. This action is the result of consistently low or no enrollment in these concentrations. Both are supported by the respective Deans.

C. College: College of Science and Mathematics

Program Changes:

(1) Department: Geosciences

a. Program: Post-Baccalaureate Certificate in Geographic Information Systems

Request: Modify

Originator: Jeong Seong

Rationale: The Department of Geosciences proposes changing the geographic information systems certificate program (GISCP) to be delivered from face-to-face to 100% online method because of the following reasons:

(1) The GISCP has been offered mainly targeting field professionals who need up-to-date skills in geospatial technology. They can benefit from taking courses via online because of their work schedule and remote locations.

(2) This proposal is for legitimating the current GISCP course delivery method which is 100% online.

Action: Approved

Course Changes:

(2) Department: Biology Department

Course: BIOL-5728 Bacterial Pathogenesis

Request: Add

Originator: Kenyon, William

Rationale: Bacterial Pathogenesis has been taught for several semesters as a special topics course in biology at both the undergraduate and graduate levels (BIOL 4985/6985 Special Topics in Biology). The course has proven to be very popular among M.S. students in biology planning careers in medicine or fields in the biomedical sciences. The course is a forerunner of what students typically encounter in medical school microbiology courses. The number of medically-related, graduate-level biology courses offered each semester is currently limited. This forces some of our M.S. students interested in the medical field to take other courses in order to complete the course requirements for the M.S. degree (10 courses for non-thesis track students and 7 courses for thesis-track students). For that reason, Bacterial Pathogenesis is a critical course for many of our graduate students interested in medicine and the clinical sciences. Furthermore, the addition of Bacterial Pathogenesis (BIOL 4728/5728) will create a series of graduate-level courses in medical/clinical microbiology to also include Essentials of Immunology (BIOL 5727), Medical Virology (BIOL 5729), and Emerging Pathogens (BIOL 5730). As a requirement of the course, graduate students enrolled in BIOL 5728 must complete an oral PowerPoint presentation based on an article from the Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report (MMWR) published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). Graduate students will also draw relevant background information from other sources such as review articles and book chapters and incorporate that information into their MMWR presentation. An online, virtual laboratory component is planned which will familiarize students with laboratory techniques routinely used to isolate, culture, and identify bacterial pathogens from clinical specimens.

D. College: College of Arts and Humanities

Course Changes:

(1) Department: English and Philosophy Department

a. Course: ENGL-5295 Young Adult Literature

Request: Add

Originator: Newton, David W.

Rationale: The department currently offers ENGL 4295 (Young Adult Literature), but there is no equivalent 5000-level section of the course that graduate students can take. The College of Education has requested that the department create a 5000-level section so that graduate students enrolled in the Language Arts M.A.T. program can take it as part of the required content area courses. Graduate students in the M.A. English program who are interested in teaching will also be able to take this course.

C. Time Limits to Complete a Graduate Degree (see Appendix B) – Dr. Gantner

Dr. Adel Abunawass, the department chair and program director of the Applied Computer Science master's program wants to decrease the number of years that a student has to complete the degree. The rationale provided in Appendix C is very clear.

C. College: College of Science and Mathematics

Policy Changes:

(1) Department: Computer Science

a. Policy: Time Limits to Complete a Graduate Degree

Request: Modify

Originator: Adel Abunawass

Rationale: The M.S. in Applied Computer Science is a 100% online program with a cohort matriculation model; students must enter in the Fall semester and may complete the program in two years (6 consecutive semesters including summers). The prerequisite structure of the program requires students to take courses in a specific order. Students failing to complete a course or choosing not to take a course according to the cohort rotation will fall behind and must wait an entire year before they are able to continue their matriculation in the program. This structure, as well as, the frequency of change in specific course content necessary to remain current with the field, necessitates that students progress through the program with continuity and according to the rotation. It is important, as an online program with no face-to-face interaction among students, that students progress along with their cohort peers to maintain the community necessary for student retention and effective completion of various group-oriented assignments and projects. Furthermore, shortening the duration from six to three years will align the program with national benchmark standards of similar online programs.

A 3-year time limit will benefit students by encouraging them to stay engaged and complete the program in a timely manner. This will improve graduation rates and help the department to effectively plan for resource needs to support the program.

Attachment: Appendix C.

Action: Approved

D. Sub-committee report on "Grade Replacement Policy" review. (Myrna Gantner, Kareen Malone, Nancy Penco, and John Ponder)

Discussion: Myrna explained that due to "Banner", grade replacement for graduate programs must be consistent with the "undergraduate policy" however, programs may still have different policies. If programs have a different policy, their grade replacement must be manually handled by contacting the Registrar. This process will not change; however, each program is encouraged to review their program's policy to assure consistency with its application to students.

E. Introduced topic: Receipt of Transcripts by Schools/Colleges

Discussion: The topic of "receipt of transcripts" by the colleges was introduced by Doug. He expressed concern that when the schools/colleges receive transcripts (which should go directly to the Registrar) that they are not always marked as "transcripts", so they are inadvertently being opened which is in conflict with university policy. It is believed that the decentralization of the graduate school functions which moved the transcript receipt and review process responsibility to the Registrar's office has compounded this problem. Myrna expressed that this topic would be a discussion point at the next Dean's meeting in order to investigate an acceptable alternative.

Request for Specific Time Limit for the M.S. in Applied Computer Science Program
2/4/2013

The Department of Computer Science requests that the Graduate Catalog policy, "Time Limits to Complete a Graduate Degree" be modified to stipulate "The M.S. in Applied Computer Science program must be completed within three years.

Rationale:

The M.S. in Applied Computer Science is a 100% online program with a cohort matriculation model; students must enter in the Fall semester and may complete the program in two years (6 consecutive semesters including summers). The prerequisite structure of the program requires students to take courses in a specific order. Students failing to complete a course or choosing not to take a course according to the cohort rotation will fall behind and must wait an entire year before they are able to continue their matriculation in the program. This structure, as well as, the frequency of change in specific course content necessary to remain current with the field, necessitates that students progress through the program with continuity and according to the rotation. It is important, as an online program with no face-to-face interaction among students, that students progress along with their cohort peers to maintain the community necessary for student retention and effective completion of various group-oriented assignments and projects. Furthermore, shortening the duration from six to three years will align the program with national benchmark standards of similar online programs.

A 3-year time limit will benefit students by encouraging them to stay engaged and complete the program in a timely manner. This will improve graduation rates and help the department to effectively plan for resource needs to support the program.
