

Memorandum of Understanding

Between the Dalton State College Library & the University of West Georgia Library

Re: Library Services

Whereas Dalton State College (DSC) and the University of West Georgia (UWG) participate in cooperative University System of Georgia (USG) initiatives, where students of each receive services on the other's campus; and

whereas accreditation standards require that a student's "home institution" provide library services to them, wherever instruction is received,

Therefore, the Dalton State College Library and the University of West Georgia Library covenant and agree:

I. Library materials

When available, UWG Library will purchase appropriate online materials for the use of UWG students at Dalton State College. However, the Dalton State College Library (hereinafter referred to as DSC Library) agrees to house and service an indeterminate number of print library materials to support the curriculum of the UWG programs at Dalton State. These materials will be selected and purchased by UWG librarians (in consultation with UWG faculty teaching in UWG programs offered at DSC), using funds provided by UWG and designated specifically to support those programs. Any non-electronic materials purchased with these funds will be cataloged and made available through DSC Library and will become a permanent part of the DSC Library collection.

Circulating library materials at either location can be delivered to the other site by utilizing the GIL Express Service of the University System of Georgia, or any other inter-library delivery mechanisms developed by the USG.

II. Reference and other in-building services

Each library will provide to patrons of the other library the same in-house services provided to its own users, with the exception of services for which the library incurs charges, such as Inter-library Loan. Access to licensed online databases is generally limited to in-building or on-campus use: off-campus access purchased by either of the libraries for the use of its own students and faculty will not be granted reciprocally, and ILL services will be provided by each library for its own users.

When possible, reserve materials for UWG students at DSC Library--and Dalton State students enrolled in any classes at UWG--will be provided via the Ingram Library's electronic reserves system. When requested by UWG faculty at Dalton State College, however, DSC Library agrees to process, house and circulate Reserve reading materials according to its own current policies and procedures governing Reserves, and the UWG Library will do the same for any Dalton State College faculty who may provide instruction on the UWG campus.

In most cases, library instruction should be provided by the Library of the students' home institution; however general orientations for students of UWG or DSC housed on each other's campuses may be provided by the staff at the campus library which students are actually using, if the library in question is willing and has appropriate staff available. The contact for UWG students and faculty at DSC is the Distance Learning Library Services Office at Ingram Library. That office will, if necessary, refer the request to the appropriate Liaison Librarian at UWG. The contact for DSC students and faculty at UWG shall be the Library Instruction Coordinator or any librarian at the DSC Library. Necessary facilities for instruction will be negotiated on an individual basis, although current policies will generally apply.

UWG students at Dalton State College will be expected to attempt to meet their informational and research needs by utilizing the resources at the DSC Library and via remote access to the online resources provided by UWG. If they are unable to do so, they may request assistance through the Distance Learning Library Services Office at UWG. Information on services and policies is available at:
<http://libguides.westga.edu/distance>

Should any Dalton State College students be in enrolled in DSC classes taught on the UWG campus, they will be expected to attempt to meet their informational and research needs by utilizing the resources located at UWG. If they are unable to do so, they should request assistance through a librarian at the DSC Library.

III. Circulation and use of circulating materials

- A. Borrowing privileges/regulations for DSC students and faculty who choose to travel to Carrollton shall normally be governed by the policies of the GIL Express system, which provides that students, faculty and staff of any USG institution may obtain limited borrowing privileges at the libraries of other USG institutions if they present identification acceptable to the visited library, have a patron record accessible through the Voyager UB system, and are in good standing at the library of their home institution. Policies governing GIL Express are available at <http://gilexpress.usg.edu/policies.html>

An exception to GIL Express policies will be made for DSC students at UWG who need access to Reserve materials in the Library. (Any local resident is eligible for Guest Borrower status, and those policies will apply if the individual is not currently enrolled or employed at a USG institution).

- B. Similarly, borrowing privileges for UWG students and faculty who travel to use the DSC Library shall be governed under the applicable policies of the GIL Express system. An exception to GIL Express policies will be made for UWG students at DSC who need to access Reserve materials in the Library.
- C. Materials covered under the GIL Express policies which are requested for delivery to DSC Library by UWG students or faculty will be sent according to the policies and procedures of the GIL Express System, and vice versa. Other materials needed by UWG students at Dalton State College which are not covered under GIL Express may be requested through the Distance Library Learning Office's document delivery service, which is accessed through our ILLIAD system. #### IV. General Policies

- A. The two libraries will keep each other informed of changes in circulation policies, library operating hours, and other matters which impact access to library services and materials.
- B. Each library will accept responsibility for its own patrons and will, upon presentation of copies of circulation records, attempt to get back overdue materials and/or collect any charges due to the lending library. Should the library be unable to collect, it will reimburse the lending library for the replacement cost of the material.

This agreement shall remain in effect until either party chooses to cancel it.
