

First-Year Seminars

College can take your passion for learning to the next level, and First-Year Seminars (XIDS 2002) are a great place to start! Designed to introduce you to the academic life of the university, seminars focus on intellectually engaging topics that reflect our faculty's commitment to helping you learn how to succeed in college. All First-Year Seminars count within UWG's core curriculum, so they also set you on a pathway toward completing your degree in a timely fashion. Approximately 60 First-Year Seminars will be offered in the fall on a variety of academic topics in the Sciences and Math, Humanities and the Arts, and the Social Sciences.

Examples of seminar topics include:

- Sport, Society, and Culture
- Walt Disney and the American Century
- Friendship and Dating in College
- What It Takes to Live on Earth
- The Hunger Games and the Politics of Food

For questions or additional information about First-Year Academic Programs contact:
Dr. Ryan Bronkema, Director of First-Year Academic Programs
rbronkem@westga.edu