Course Description and Learning Outcomes

This introductory course is a survey of the major developments and themes in world history from the earliest civilizations through the Age of Discovery. We will look not only at individual societies, but also at cross-cultural interactions between societies, which play a crucial role in shaping the course of human history. We will also explore how historians develop their understanding of the past, including the way concepts and theories from other academic disciplines enrich our understanding of history, and the impact of current concerns and trends in scholarship on our interpretations of the past.

In this course, students will learn to analyze and interpret information from both primary and secondary sources. They will develop map skills and an appreciation for the impact of geography on history. Students will demonstrate the ability to think historically through an understanding of the political, social, economic, and cultural dimensions of world history; comprehension of causal relationships and patterns of change and continuity over time; and awareness of the social significance of ethnicity, gender, race, and class in historical events.

Students, please carefully review the information at this link: https://www.westga.edu/administration/vpaa/assets/docs/faculty-resources/common_language_for_course_syllabi_v2.pdf
It contains important information pertaining to your rights and responsibilities in this class. Because these statements are updated as federal, state, university, and accreditation standards change, you should review the information each semester. Homework Assignments

There will be six to eight online homework assignments. These assignments will be announced in class and on CourseDen. Some of these will be open-book quizzes covering textbook material that we will not have time to cover in class. Other homework assignments will be based on maps, primary source readings, or other resources provided to you in class. If classes are cancelled for any reason, we may make up some material through the posting of video or text of lectures and an accompanying homework assignment. These homework assignments will be done online through CourseDen.

Extra Credit/Improving Your Grade

Extra credit is not regularly available for this course. Any extra credit opportunity that arises will be available to ALL students in the class.

Attendance and Behavior Policy

I do not give grades for attendance or reduce grades for non-attendance. However, students who do not attend class regularly have traditionally done poorly in the class. The tests are drawn directly from my lectures and class discussions. If you miss a class at which I announce a homework assignment, you are still responsible for completing the assignment on time and the due date for that work will NOT be adjusted. Deductions ARE made for work completed late.

Disruptive behavior will not be tolerated. This includes talking in class, habitually entering class late or leaving early, doing work for other classes, and any other behavior that is distracting to the instructor and/or other students. Repeat offenders will be asked to leave the class and dropped from the roll.

Make-up Work and Late Assignments

Make-up exams will be scheduled ONLY in rare cases, for medical or other emergency. The instructor reserves the right to require written confirmation of this emergency (such as physicians note for illness or police report for accident). If you have a conflict with a scheduled exam that does not fall into this category, please see me as soon as possible PRIOR to the exam to discuss the possibility of arranging to take an early alternative exam.

Due dates for homework assignments will usually be two class periods after the assignment is made. Late work will not be given full credit, and will be accepted only by prior arrangement with the instructor.
