COURSE INFORMATION
Course Description

From the expulsion of the kings ca. 510 BC to the death of Julius Caesar in 44 BC, Rome’s government was a Republic. In that period, Rome transformed from a small village on the Tiber to an empire spanning much of the Ancient Mediterranean, and reaching as far west as Britain. How and why did Rome achieve it? And how, if at all, did the Republican system of government contribute to Rome’s incredible military success? Also, how did the constitution of the Roman Republic change over time, to accommodate the growing state? Finally, why did the Roman Republic fall?

Modern historians’ ability to answer these questions is complicated by the scarcity of primary sources, as well as the quality of said sources: the most prolific historian of the Roman Republic, Livy, composed his monumental Ab Urbe Condita, a history of Rome since the city’s foundation, towards the end of the first century BC – nearly half a millennium after the establishment of the Republic! In this class, you will have the opportunity to study the available primary sources for yourself, as we consider in detail the key developments in the political, military, social, and cultural history of the Roman Republic.
This course has been designated as Writing-Intensive. Thus in addition to reading primary sources and learning about the major historical events and developments in the Roman Republic, students will hone their skills in thinking and writing historically about the questions presented above through the completion of a variety of short research and writing assignments, and one longer final essay or project.

<td>Weekly Online Discussions</td>
<td>Since this is an online upper-level course, class discussions are key to ensuring that we all learn through discussing crucial aspects of that reading together. I will post several questions each week that I would like us to discuss as a group. You will always have the option, in addition, of posting your own question that you would like to bring up to the rest of the group, and proposing your opinion about it. In grading the discussions, I will look both at the quality of your own main post for the week, and the quality and quantity of your responses to your classmates. For more details, please see below. You will be able to drop your TWO lowest discussion grades at the end of the semester.</td>
<td>Initial post each week is due by Monday at midnight, and follow-up posts are due by midnight on Thursday. The exception to this rule is the week of MLK Jr. Day, which falls on 01/15. That week, your initial post is due on Tuesday, 01/16.</td>

| Participation in the Roman Politics Game | In order to acquire a better understanding of how Roman politics worked, the entire class will participate in a game in the last 6 weeks of class. The game will follow the rules of Roman elections as closely as possible, and each student will be assigned the role of a historical character from the late Republic.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | For the duration of the game, it is your responsibility to keep up with the class Facebook page, in order to use your character’s special powers, and participate in elections. The goal? To win more consulships than anyone else!

The winner of the Game will be declared Dictator Perpetuo – meaning, he/she will receive an automatic 100 for the Final Essay/Project, and will be exempt from completing that assignment.                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 10%    |

Grading expectations for Weekly Discussions:
In grading the weekly discussions, I will consider the following:
• Quality of your own response to the week’s material – I will look for a clear argument in response to the week’s question; specific examples from the readings to back up your points, sufficient development of the overall argument. The biggest sin at this level of study is vagueness – meaning, students often say something brief and stop there, instead of elaborating in detail and providing examples. Your own response accounts for 75% of the points for the weekly discussions.

• The quantity and quality of your comments for your classmates – For each weekly discussion, you will have to respond to at least two classmates, and part of your discussion grade is both the quantity and the quality of your responses. If you are writing less than a short paragraph in your response, you are probably not writing enough. Your responses should be substantive – meaning, they should advance the discussion, rather than just briefly agreeing or disagreeing with the original poster. Your responses count for 25% of the points for the weekly discussions. Do not neglect the responses – if you write a perfect main post, but do not write response posts, the highest grade you can receive for that discussion is 75!

Communication Rules

Class Communication:

Email is the fastest way to reach me, if you have a question or a concern. Unless I am in a work meeting or sleeping or dealing with a toddler tantrum, I will respond to your email very quickly – possibly within the hour. Please feel free to email me any questions or concerns at any time either at the regular UWG email or CourseDen email.

A note on email etiquette: I will always be courteous and professional in my correspondence with you, and expect the same of you. This means, you should address me as “Professor” or “Dr.” in your emails, as well as in person. “Mr.” or “Ms.” are not considered to be polite forms of address for your college professors.

Netiquette (or Online Etiquette):

As students in an upper-level history course, you are all professional academics in training, and that is how I will treat you in this course. This is also how I would like you to think of each other during your interactions in this course. I am sure that we will all disagree at various points about topics of discussion (and professional academics disagree quite frequently in their interpretation of evidence), but my goal is to make sure that all voices in this class are heard and respected. You do not have to agree with each other, but you do have to hear each other out, and be able to defend your own argument with the help of evidence, whenever disagreeing. On a related note, you do not have to agree with everything that I say, but again, I would like you to be able to ground your argument in evidence from the primary sources. If at any point you feel like you are not being respected, please do let me know! It is important for the success of the entire class that all of you will feel respected and included in the discussions.

Expected Response times:
Students can expect me to be in the online discussion at least three days during the workweek, and I will check in once during the weekend. Online discussions will be graded within 3 days of the due date and will contain feedback on what you did well and what you can do to improve. Other assignments will be graded within 7 days of the due date.

Expectations of Students

Course Structure:

this course is taught 100% online via CourseDen. You must make sure that you have regular access to the Internet and CourseDen to be able to keep up with the course. You will have something due every single week of the semester, and all of your deadlines fall at midnight on the same days. In the case of discussions, all discussion assignments are due on Monday (initial post) and Thursday (responses). All papers and the research bibliography are due on a Saturday. Separate deadlines apply for the Game and the final project, so please check the syllabus schedule.

Course and UWG Policies

Attendance Policy: In order to distribute Title IV funding (federal student aid), UWG requires student attendance verification in all classes. For this online class, students are required to post in the online discussion during week 1, to be considered as attending class. Students who do not submit any assignments during week 1 may be dropped from the class for non-attendance. Beyond the first week, regularly logging on to the class in CourseDen and pacing yourself to complete assignments on time is essential for your success.

Academic Dishonesty:

Academic dishonesty on any assignment in this course will result in an F for the course, and the referral of the student to the appropriate university committee. Academic dishonesty can take many shapes. Please avoid inadvertent plagiarism by ALWAYS citing any sources that you use when writing papers or essays. For further information, see http://www.westga.edu/~handbook/index.php?page=honorcode

Americans with Disabilities Act Statement: If you are a student who is disabled as defined under the Americans with Disabilities Act and require assistance or support services, please seek assistance through the Center for Disability. UWG also provides Accessibility Statements for Technology that you may be required to use for this course.

For more information on the Americans with Disabilities Act, UWG Email, Credit Hour, and UWG Honor Code policies as well as information on Academic Tutoring, Student Services, and Technical Requirements, Privacy Policy, and Accessibility Statements, please see the Common Language for Syllabus document.

I strongly recommend that students make an electronic copy of everything submitted to me via the Dropbox.

Center for Academic Success
The new Center for Academic Success (CAS) provides services, programs, and opportunities to help all undergraduate students succeed academically. The CAS offers free appointment-based peer tutoring in core courses, as well as supplemental instruction (SI)—which is peer-facilitated collaborative learning—in a variety of disciplines. Students seeking help with study skills and strategies can attend workshops though the Academic Success Workshop series, or work individually with either a staff or peer Academic Coach. Beginning Fall 2014, the CAS will also offer “Back on Track,” a voluntary academic recovery program designed for students who want to improve their grades and academic standing. The Center for Academic Success is located in UCC 200, and can be reached at 678-839-6280. Our email address is cas@westga.edu.

Student Services
Here is a great resource of Student Services for all students at UWG, whether or not they are taking online courses. This link provides students with most of the information they need. If a student is experiencing distress and needs some help, check out UWG Cares.
