Course Overview: This course introduces students to the study of sociology. It also exposes students to the many ways in which sociologists examine human social behavior, and the ways in which research findings contribute to our understanding of society. Students will learn the basic concepts, theories and methodologies used in the field of sociology, and how sociology is employed in studying people’s social behavior. The course will also assist students with developing their critical thinking skill, and wider view of the global world.

Purchasing Connect PLUS Access follow these steps: 1) Log into the CourseDen page for the course 2) Under Content, look for and click McGraw-Hill Campus on CourseDen, and 3) Click on Connect on the picture of textbook for the course and follow the on-screen instructions to buy the textbook.

Course Requirements: In this course, you are expected to complete the readings assigned before each lecture. You must also come to class prepared to participate in discussions using knowledge of what you have read and applying critical thinking. There will be a midterm, homework assignments, and a final exam given in the course.

Format: Lectures, discussions, collaborative work in small groups, and assigned readings.

Attendance Policy: I want to encourage you to come to class regularly. If you miss too many classes, it can affect your performance. Read the assigned sections in each chapter before each lecture. It will make the learning process easier for you. More importantly, the material being covered in class will not be totally new to you if you go through the assigned readings before class. If you miss a class for any reason, you are still responsible for all assignments that are due.

Encouragement: I want to encourage you to read all the assigned readings. It is vital that you keep up with the readings and other assigned works. Assignments will be given once the lecture is complete at the end of every two weeks on the assigned chapters.

Respect for your classmates: There will be no personal conversations going on among anyone while class is in progress. Any discussions taking place must be pertaining to the class lecture and learning that is taking place in class. You are expected to show respect for your classmates by providing a peaceful and pleasant learning environment. In this class, we will respectfully listen to the views of others during class lectures and discussions.

CourseDen: This course uses CourseDen; it is the University of West Georgia’s online course management system. See CourseDen on a regularly for course updates and assignments. Your grades on all exams, assignments and projects will also be posted on CourseDen.

Homework Assignments: Practice homework questions will be given after the completion of each chapter every two weeks. The questions are drawn from problems in the textbook. Please follow the instructions of each question when conducting these assignments. Homework assignments will contribute 33% to your final grade.

Tests/Exams: There will be two exams (mid-term and final exam) in this course. Each exam will contribute 33% to your final course grade. Each exam will be taken in class. During each test/exam, you cannot communicate with your classmates. Also, all cell phones must be turned off. Your test/final exam must reflect your knowledge of the course.

Late Home-works and Works: Apart from extraordinary situations, I will not accept late work. You are expected to meet most deadlines.

University of West Georgia Department of Sociology’s Principle on Academic Integrity: In this course, students are expected to abide by the department of sociology’s academic integrity principle. The department states that “the presence of academic dishonesty in particular frustrates the effort to create and sustain an academic culture and community that nurtures student growth and development.” It is also against any form of academic dishonesty as it states that “integrity [] should characterize communities both within academia and without [it], is corrupted by the threat of untruthfulness, deceit, and fraud.” In this course, we will all live up to the department’s principle on academic integrity. You must abide by the principles stated in the UWG’s Academic Honor Code, which stands against cheating, plagiarism, and academic dishonesty and lack of integrity.
