Gender is…like a lens through which we’ve always seen and can’t remember how the world looked before.
And this lens is strictly bifocal.
It strangely shows us only black and white in a Technicolor world.
– Riki Wilchins

COURSE DESCRIPTION & STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES

This course examines sociological aspects of gender. In this course, we will explore gender as socially constructed with meanings that vary historically and across cultures.
We will contemplate how we categorize gender, deconstructing many taken-for-granted assumtions. Through this critical lens, we will recognize the intersections of gender with other social markers, connecting concepts to our own experiences. We will trace the marks of gender on our bodies, and interrogate how gendered embodiment conveys arbitrary meanings of masculinities and femininities. We will examine how sexuality is gendered. We will understand the ways gender is socially controlled, and consider gendered violence as an extreme form of controlling gender. We will study gender in the social institutions of media, education, and work. Finally, we will conclude by conceiving of ways to transgress gender inequalities and gender oppressions.

By the end of this course, students will be able to practice sociological research methods and use critical thinking skills to analyze how gender is socially constructed and controlled.

NOTE: Final grades are FINAL. I do not offer extra credit and do not change final course grades because doing so is unfair to other students. Please see me early in the semester if you need assistance.

Reading Responses – 15%
To encourage responsiveness to the diverse issues addressed in the readings, I require that you turn in a one-page reading response at the beginning of class. You need to complete 15 responses throughout the term for full credit. You may turn in one response per class, and it must refer to something in the readings assigned for that day only. This one-page response should be typed, double-spaced, and include a header with your name and date on a single line. Reflect on something in at least two of the required readings for that day by focusing on a specific concept or interesting point. Do not summarize the articles. Your reading responses will not be graded, but they must include sufficient, thoughtful comments that demonstrate your understanding of the reading in order to receive credit. If I determine that your response should not get credit, I will return it to you with feedback. Usually, uncredited responses are too vague, too short, or refer to readings assigned for a different day. Each credited reading response is worth 1% of your final course grade (maximum of 15%).

Engaged Participation – 25%
To facilitate your engagement with the course, I will implement numerous in-class activities throughout the term. Engaged participation will be based on activities such as writing reflections, small group work, class surveys, and reading quizzes. Consequently, you should come to class having read all the assigned readings. Participation activities will not be announced in advance, so it is in your best interest to attend class regularly. If you are present and participate in the day’s activity fully, you will receive 2 points for satisfactory participation. Being absent will result in 0 points and being present but not participating fully (e.g., insufficient writing, evidence of not reading, being absent for part of the activity, texting, refusing to talk to group members, etc.) will result in 1 point. Your final participation grade will be your total accrued points divided into the possible total points. Engaged participation is worth a maximum of 25% of your final course grade.
Papers – 60%
This semester I will assign 3 papers (~5 pages each). The papers are designed to stimulate your thinking on core course topics and require you to apply sociological research and concepts to real life. Issue dates and due dates are noted in the syllabus, and specific instructions will be handed out in class on the issue dates. I will grade papers using the conventional numerical system. Paper 1 will be worth 15%, Paper 2 will be worth 20%, and Paper 3 will be worth 25% of your final course grade. Please use the University Writing Center to help you communicate your ideas effectively.

POLICIES
Please review the Common Language for Course Syllabi. It contains important material pertaining to your rights and responsibilities in this class, including information about accessibility services, academic success, writing support, and the honor code. Because these statements are updated as federal, state, and accreditation standards change, you should review the information each semester.

Accessibility Services
Students with a documented disability may work with UWG Accessibility Services to receive essential services specific to their disability. All entitlements to accommodations are based on documentation and USG Board of Regents standards. If a student needs course adaptations or accommodations because of a disability or chronic illness, or if he/she needs to make special arrangements in case the building must be evacuated, the student should notify his/her instructor in writing and provide a copy of his/her Student Accommodations Report (SAR), which is available only from Accessibility Services. Faculty cannot offer accommodations without timely receipt of the SAR; further, no retroactive accommodations will be given. For more information, please contact Accessibility Services.

CourseDen
You are required to regularly check our CourseDen page. This site will include announcements, readings, assignments, Turnitin links, and grades.

Attendance
I believe there are various legitimate reasons for missing class. Therefore, I do not distinguish between excused and unexcused absences unless a student is officially representing the University in sanctioned events. If you miss class, it is your responsibility to get notes from a classmate and to communicate with me regarding absences. All students are responsible for turning in assignments when they are due.
Missed and Late Assignments

- Reading Responses – Due in class. For credit, students must attend the class in which they turn in a Response. You are allowed one opportunity to turn in a RR that you were unable to submit in class. This RR should be emailed before midnight on the date it is due.

- Engaged Participation – Make-ups permitted only for University-sanctioned business.

- Papers – Turn in a paper hardcopy for me to grade in class on the due dates. For emergencies, you may email papers or upload them to Turnitin on CourseDen to have them count as turned in on the day they were emailed, then turn in the hardcopy when you are on campus next. For each day that you turn in any paper late, I will deduct 10 points.

- If class meets on a holy day of your faith, please inform me by January 15 so that we can make arrangements for missed assignments.

Withdrawals

The last day to withdraw with a grade of “W” is February 27, 2019.

Academic Honesty

UWG students are expected to adhere to the honor code and maintain academic honesty. Acts of academic dishonesty—including, but not limited to, cheating, plagiarism, excessive collaboration, and resubmitting work from another class—can result in an “F” in the course. Honor code violations are reported to the Office of Community Standards. Trust that I treat academic dishonesty as a serious offense.

Classroom Environment

Controversial topics are inherent to this class. Many of us hold personal opinions and have experiences relevant to the diverse issues that we will explore. Some of the materials and discussions in this course deal with sensitive issues and contain graphic content including, but not limited to, profanity, nude and sexual imagery, and violence. This content may challenge your ideologies, morals, values, politics, or comfort zones. If you think your discomfort could impede your engagement with class, please come see me—this class may not be appropriate for you.

Please keep in mind that the student body is diverse and refrain from making assumptions about who is or is not around you. I trust that you will remain respectful in class. We all have opinions, and it is okay to respectfully disagree with other people’s comments. It is also okay to engage in passionate discussion using claims based on evidence. It is not okay to engage in actions that are hostile or derogatory. Please monitor the amount of talking you do during class. I encourage participation from a variety of students. For the frequent talkers, try waiting for 3 students to talk before you contribute to discussion again. For quieter folks, take advantage of silences to offer your thoughts. Please raise your hand to contribute to class, as calling out can be silencing to others who are less comfortable doing so. Audio and video recordings of class are not allowed without written permission from the instructor.

Electronic devices are allowed for class purposes only. Using devices for other reasons may result in lowered participation grades.
