Course Policies

Learning Outcomes
Upon completion of this course, students will be able to

- Describe the spread of Ebola virus and its impact;
- Describe the treatment of Ebola victims at Emory University, Atlanta;
- Describe career opportunities at Tanner Medical Center, Carrollton;
- Describe a career as it relates to Ebola, and identify entrance requirements for education to pursue this career; and
- Demonstrate good written communication skills in standard American English, through essays, discussion posts and the preparation of application materials (cover letter and resume).

Letter Grades
Score >90% A; 89-80% B; 79-70% C; 69-60% D; <60% F

Written work
Please use standard American English. Please ask – would your professor in ENGL 1101/1102 be happy to read your work? I suggest writing using Word, saving your work frequently, for all your work.

Submission of work, including late work
Late work will not be accepted, and will be awarded zero credit, unless there is an emergency that is appropriately documented.

Policy on cheating
Occurrences of cheating are rare. However, cheating by one individual raises questions about fairness for the rest of the class, and indeed, endangers the honor code that governs our examination system. It is after considerable thought and agonizing that I have arrived at the following formula. If an individual cheats on a writing assignment for the first time, he/she will obtain a score of zero for that particular report or writing assignment. If an individual is caught cheating a second time during the semester, he/she will receive a grade of F for the entire course.

Resources for Students with disabilities
The Office of Accessibility Services at the University of West Georgia is committed to providing access to campus resources and opportunities to allow students with disabilities to obtain a quality educational experience at UWG.
