A student is determined to be eligible for a Foreign Language Substitution (FLS), per USGBOR policy, based on a documented moderate to severe hearing impairment, severe speech impairment, or specific documented learning disability (USGBOR Academic and Student Affairs Handbook).

- FLS entitlement due to a severe to profound hearing impairment must be documented by an audiologist report (within the last three years) and explanation of the report which specifically addresses the student's impaired AIDED speech discrimination capabilities.
- FLS entitlement due to a severe speech impairment must be documented by a speech pathology report (within the last three years) and explanation of the report which specifically addresses the student's speech capabilities.
- FLS entitlement due to a specific learning disability MUST be specifically approved by the Regents Center for Learning Disorders (RCLD) either through review of the student's privately obtained evaluation or by a RCLD evaluation.

Attention Instructors:

The student who shared this document with you is entitled to substitute for his/her foreign language requirement an English language course on a cultural aspect of a region or country whose language is a foreign language. Please feel free to contact Accessibility Services to confirm. The student has a disability of a sort that makes it impossible for him/her to learn a foreign language, resulting in the approved course substitution. The disability will most likely be a learning disability, which must be approved by the RCLD, or a disability of hearing or speaking, in which certain sounds are either not discernible or not reproducible by the student. Many of the courses that qualify as substitutes are upper level classes, which is why this student may be in a class with majors and without the background that most of the other students will have acquired. Thank you for being aware of this student's situation. Please feel free to discuss this with the student and contact his/her Accessibility Counselor if you have questions or concerns.

Student Process:

- Meet with an Accessibility Services Counselor and provide the required documentation to qualify for the FLS accommodation.
- Chooses approved courses from the provided list.
- To find out if a course not on the list is approvable, contact your Accessibility Services Counselor BEFORE taking the course.
- Four courses total are required; up to two courses can also be counted towards core curriculum requirements.
- Meet with your instructor to discuss the course requirements and why you are taking the course.

- Upon satisfactory completion of each approved course, you must email your Accessibility Counselor with the following information: full name, 917#, name of course, course CRN#, and the semester completed.
- Your Counselor will email the Registrar's Office (registrar@westga.edu) with this information, who will then then note your Wolf Watch.

Authorized Substitutes for Foreign Language Courses

Following, is a list of courses approved as English language substitutes for a foreign language course. These courses may be substituted for a college preparatory curriculum deficiency in foreign language or for the foreign language requirement for a degree. For degree requirements, four courses total are required; up to two courses can also be counted towards core curriculum requirements. To qualify, the course must involve learning about a culture with a foreign language.
