In addition to the Advisement Center there are professional academic advisors in

- The College of Education,
- Richards College of Business,
- Tanner Health System School of Nursing.

These advisement centers provide intensive advising support through regular contact with their advisees: (1) help students explore various fields of interest, select a specific academic major, research career options that relate to their programs; (2) develop plans of study appropriate for students' educational goals; (3) refer students to other campus offices for assistance in academic, personal, and career counseling; academic skills development; and financial aid.

distance and off-campus students online via email, web-conferencing, and by telephone. Students can also receive advising from faculty and full-time advisors at our off-campus locations, at specific times.

As of 2012, courses are provided within our online learning management system (CourseDen D2L) for advising based on at-risk situations or majors.

UWG eCore & UWG eMajor:

While online UWG eCore & UWG eMajor students are still directed to consult with an advisor in their program of study or the Advising Center, UWG eCore & UWG eMajor students are also assigned UWG eCore/eMajor Liaisons. They are knowledgeable about all issues associated with admissions, registration, student services, and success in the UWG eCore & UWG eMajor program. The Liaisons and central UWG eCore & UWG eMajor Student Success Manager and accompanying Student Success Team members contact the online UWG eCore & UWG eMajor students frequently via Google groups, with tidbits of helpful information and reminders. The UWG eCore & UWG eMajor Student Success Team also takes at-risk reports from all eCore instructors and follows up with at-risk students by email, phone, or text.

UWG Newnan:

UWG Newnan has several advisors available:

		The Academic Instructional Support Specialist provides general academic advising for meta-majors. Advising for COE, Nursing and the Richards College of Business are available to meet with students in Newnan during advising and registration periods. eCore & eMajor Liaison onsite for any program related questions.
